

REMEMBERING DOUG LUNN

1954 – 2017

Doug Lunn, 63, of Santa Monica, California, died Saturday, February 11, 2017 from complications of pancreatic cancer.

Doug was born on January 30, 1954 and grew up in San Carlos, California. A prolific musician, Doug joined the The American Federation of Musicians (AFM) at the age of 19. He began his professional career as a bassist, keyboardist and percussionist in the vibrant San Francisco music scene of the early 1970s with many notable artists, including Linda Tillery and her soul-rock band, The Loading Zone.

In 1975, Doug studied harmony, counterpoint, form, and composition with renowned jazz pianist, composer and educator Art Lande.

Doug moved to Los Angeles in March of 1977, where he quickly established himself as an innovative top tier studio session recording artist, songwriter and music producer. He is remembered by peers and fans for his mastery of the 5-string fretless electric bass guitar. In a February 2009 interview with FretlessBass.com he said,

“I got my first fretless in 1974 when I was 20 years old. I remember having to call Fender (guitar maker) to place a special order. They didn’t exactly know how to react. When I asked for a Sunburst Precision bass with a fretless neck, Fender’s reply was “You know, the frets don’t cost any extra.”

In 2011, Doug released a solo album, The Doug Lunn Project, with Vinnie Colaiuta (drums), Mike Keneally (guitars), Peter Maunu (guitars and loops), Dimitris Mahlis (guitars), and George Bernardo (mallet percussion, engineer, mixing and production assistant).
